

Are you interested in Archaeology?

Want to learn more? Saint Mary's University is offering an archaeological field school this summer at Grand-Pré National Historic Site. Exploring the ruins of an Acadian settlement dating from 1680-1755, this project provides students with hands-on training in archaeological field and laboratory methods. Students travel daily to the site and work in a dynamic environment, interacting regularly with the visiting public. Help write history from the ground up by digging into the past this summer!

Course Dates & Fees

ANTH 3373.1B/ANTH 4464.1B	July 17 – Aug. 4	$537
ANTH 3374.2/ANTH 4465.2	Aug. 7 – 23	$537

Note: There are no additional field fees associated with these courses. All equipment and transportation to and from the site is provided.

For information or to apply contact:

Prof. Jonathan Fowler
Anthropology Department
Saint Mary's University
McNally S208
(902) 420-5628

Email: fowler@ns.sympatico.ca

Or see the department website at:
www.arts.smu.ca/Anthropology

