

3 Steps to Create an Award for Mount Allison University Students

The Mount Allison Development Team will guide you through the process of establishing meaningful support for students that aligns with what is important to you.

STEP 1

Choose the kind of award

► SCHOLARSHIP

Recognizes academic excellence; entrance or for existing students; renewable or non-renewable

► BURSARY

Based primarily on financial need

► PRIZE

Recognizes accomplishments of current and graduating students

STEP 2

Select any additional preferences

Where possible, would you like to support students...

- from a particular geographic region, province, or home community
- within a particular academic program or field of study
- involved in extracurricular and community engagement activities
- who identify as Indigenous, Black, 2SLGBTQ+, first in their family to attend university, or from another traditionally underrepresented group
- who are Mount Allison student-athletes; members of a specific team

STEP 3

Determine funding

► FUND AN AWARD ON AN ANNUAL BASIS

Commit to giving a select amount each year (minimum commitment of $1,000/year for five years)

► MAKE A ONE-TIME GIFT

The University will distribute the determined individual award amount over time

► ESTABLISH AN ENDOWMENT

A minimum gift of $25,000 will create an endowment that funds the award each year in perpetuity

► CONSIDER AN ESTATE GIFT

Designate funds in your will to continue to fund your award

How To Give

Gifts can be made by cheque, credit card, stocks/securities, and other philanthropic channels. Gifts of stocks/securities come with tax advantages.

All gifts receive a charitable tax receipt.

SAMPLE AWARD

J.A. Smith Bursary

Valued at $2,000, awarded to:

- A returning student with good academic standing and demonstrated financial need
- Enrolled in a Bachelor of Science program
- Preference for an upper-year student

THANK YOU

Where possible, the University will provide you with thank you notes from students and in some instances there are opportunities for donors and students to meet.

Lifetime giving of $25,000 or more is recognized on the University's donor wall where we celebrate generosity and the importance of a Mount Allison education.
