Users are, at all times; personally responsible for use made of their accounts. Certain practices are considered misuses of the university property. Examples of such misuses are the use of any part of the Computer System for personal or corporate profit, or to provide free resources to unauthorized users.

The following policies govern the use of Mount Allison University Computing Services department:

1. No person or persons shall use the facilities of the University Computing Services department without due authorization by Computing Services.
2. Every allocation of Computing Services is made on the understanding that it is to be used only for the purpose for which it was requested and only by the person or persons by whom or on whose behalf the request was made. Use shall not be made of computing resources allocated to another person or group unless such use has been specifically authorized by Computing Services.
3. No person or persons shall by any wilful or deliberate act jeopardize the integrity of the computing equipment, its systems programs, or any other stored information.
4. Every person authorized to use computing resources shall be expected to treat as privileged, any information not provided or generated by himself which may become available to him through his use of computing resources; he shall not copy, modify, disseminate, or use any part of it without permission of the appropriate person or body.
5. Improper use of Computing Services may result in withdrawal of account numbers or other penalties. The following, (but not limited to the following), may be considered improper:

³⁵₁₇ Frivolous use of the computer, inspection of data or functions which are neither allotted to the account, nor specified as public.
